ABOUT BOSCOBEL

Boscobel opened as a nonprofit museum sixty years ago. Built between 1804 and 1808, it was originally the dream house of wealthy Loyalists. By the 1950s, after falling into disrepair, it was demolished. Preservationists saved as many architectural fragments as possible and reassembled them fifteen miles north, where the Neoclassical mansion was restored back to—and even beyond—its original grandeur. Boscobel was saved as a beautiful piece of art.

The Frances Stevens Reese Woodland Trail of Discovery offers hikers a tranquil mile through the forest. The Apple Orchard, Formal Garden, and Herb Garden feature fruit trees, flowers, and plants prized by New Yorkers then and now. The Hudson River School Artists Garden, with sculptures by Greg Wyatt, honors 19th-century painters who celebrated this landscape.

Boscobel embodies, preserves, and shares the beauty of the Hudson River Valley.

A photograph of a garden scene. In the foreground, there is a wooden raised bed filled with lavender plants. Some lavender has white flowers, while others have purple flowers. Behind the lavender is a rustic wooden fence made of horizontal logs. In the background, there are several trees with green leaves. One tree on the right has some green fruit hanging from its branches. The sky is overcast and grey.
